Mrs. Marron Talks of the Progress Made to the Efforts to Establish Playgrounds for Children, and Mr. Charles F. Wingate Tells Move to Test a Means for Dampuess

The Women's Health Protective Association held its annual meeting resterday afternoon in sorial Hall, Brooklyn, Mrs. Barron said fust before the last session of the Legislature sed she had received an intimation that possibly a bill having for its object the establishing of public playgrounds for children might be remorted upon favorably, but it was lost in the semmittee. Some good friends, however, knowing of her interest in the matter, had presented her with four lots which with little expense she would be able to throw open for the use of children this summer. The first play-ground of this kind had been started in the Thiergarten in Berlin, An American woman who saw it there liked the idea, and when she seed in Boston. From there the playground idea spread to Philadelphia and New York, and last year a playground was established in City Park. In connection with this the speaker said an open air kindergarten was started in the park. This was supported entirely by volunfary contributions.

Mr. Charles F. Wingate was introduced by Mrs. Scrimgeour, the President, as one of the prime movers in the health reform. He said prime movers in the health reform. He said the extraordinary interest in sanitation was due to the fact that women were taking held of the subject. Women were the true reformers. He said the greatest, the most important and most insidious fee of humanity in geity houses was dampness. He would rather live in a house which was full of sewer gas than in one whose cellar was damp and where he ray of sunlight same. Here were four things to which we should look in taking a new house: First, the metal work. It should show no signs of rust. Becond, the plaster. If the house is damp the cellings will have peeled and fallen off and the beams beneath will have bulged out of placs. Third, if it is an old house notice whether the woodwork is sound. If the wood is damp you can push it down like cheese, and if detaned it will often crumble in the fingers. Fourth, no slice whether any fungus has gathered in the cellar.

will often crumble in the fingers. Fourth, noslice whether any fungus has gathered in the colsar.

A sure way to discover dampness, which the speaker had tried often and successfully, was to touch the ground of the cellar with the back of the hand. By this means one could detect more readily than with the paim the presence of meuld. In closing Mr. Wingate said:

"Forty years ago there was much talk about Americans roasting themselves with heat.
Nowadayajsteam heat is far worse than furnaces for our people. Still, Americans as a general rule are healthy and our women can compare in beauty with the women of any European face."

HARLEM BUILDING COLLAPSE. Bordinsky, the Owner, Sent to the Tombe for Indictments ordered by the Grand Jury a few days ago against those responsible for the col-apse in East 116th street which killed six men vere filed yesterday in Part I. General Sessions Judge Newburger issued immediately bench warrants for the arrest of the owner of the build-Ings, Harris Fordinsky; Charles M. Montgom ery, the building inspector; John and Michael Bessa, the Italian contractors who built the foundations; Henry Mueller, Jr., the contractor, and Mueller's brother, Frank, who was foreman of the job. The warrants were given to Detective Sergeants Cuff and McNaught for service. Montgomery and Fordinsky, who had been held in $5,000 ball each by Coroner Zucca, were in the Coroner's office at the time the indictments were filed in the court. The detec-

were in the Coroner's office at the time the indictments were filed in the ceurt. The detectives went to the Coroner's office and took them into custody. When the two men were arraigned in court their counsel asked that the day for pleading be set down for June 1. Judge Newburger granted the request, and held the prisoners in $5,000 ball each, Montgomery furnished a bond that was satisfactory and was released from custody.

Fordinsky had two bondsmen on hand, who offered as security property situated at $4 and $6 East 116th street. Assistant District Attorney Daniel O'Reilly objected to the acceptance of the bondsmen. Mr. O'Reilly said that the property that they offered as security had been transferred to them a few days ago by Fordinsky. One of the tenants living upon the property had written a letter to the District Attorney, and also to the Building Department, declaring that these buildings were unsafe.

"It is bad enough for the general public to be fooled on unsafe buildings," said Mr. O'Reilly without working off filmsy bail on this county." Fordinsky's counsel argued that the security offered was good and should be accepted. Mr. O'Heilly then raised the point that neither of the bondsmen offered by Ferdinsky resided in the State of New, York; consequently the county ould not accept them. This settled the matter, and Builder Fordinsky had to go to the Tombs, while his friends hurried away to find new bondsmen.

"I was invited into her parlor," said the witness, "and there Mrs. Young told me to remove may hat and coat. She sat me down beside a table, ordered me to lay my left hand upon the table and then she placed a piece of glass over my hand. She poured some white liquid over the glass and when this operation was over she lifted the piece of glass and examined it. Then she said, 'Yes, I can cure you of your illness, but it will cost you $2."

They were dragged out and soon psylved except Foreman Frederick Drefforth. who was taken to Roosevelt Hospital. The fire was fought under difficulties. When the alarm was given and the police and firemen rushed into the basement they were met with a shower of flatirons. The Chinese laundryman in the basement thought they were burglars. They found him in the back room hugging his cash box. A rumor that a lot of women were penned in on an upper floor sent Policeman Conovan flying up the stairs. He reappeared with a limp bundle which in the darkness he had taken to be a woman. It was a roll of cloth.

The fire Marshal was asked to investigate this fire and also one at 329 Rivington street, where a blaze in a candle factory brought out Chief Bonner on a second alarm. The factory was in the rear yard and the outbreak dangerous, but the firemen smothered it quickly. was fought under difficulties. When the alarm

GOLF ON HOYLAKE LINKS. Second Day of the Annual Amatour Chau

LONDON, May 25 .- In to-day's playing for the amateur golf championship at Hoylake, Glover beat Hockmeyer. Sixteen players remained at the close of the third round, including Hilton, Tait, Ball, Hutchinson, Robb, and Low. Tait and Ball won, after tieing Hutchins and Fairlie yesterday. In the opening round Smith of the West Middiesex Club, in playing to the Alps hole, 230 yards, holed in on Ball without touching the ground. The play is believed to be unprece

A large crowd followed the Scotchman, Talt, who beat the English open champton, Hilton easily, 6 up and 5 to play, Graham, Whagham, Low, Fry, Ferguson Robb and Rall are the others remaining in Five of these are Scotchmem.

Hilton, twice open champion, has always been unlucky in the amateur event. In 1896 he lasted to the finals, when Tait beat him, as he did yesterday, and last year he succumbed in the third round to R. Maxwell. The home club, the Royal Liverpool, has still two strong representatives left in for the prize, Bail and Graham. Bail, an eleventh-hour starter, as the English papers said he would be if his sprained arm improved, won the title in 1898, 1890, 1892, and 1894, two of the times at Hoylake, while Graham, in 1896, was only beaten in the semi-finals, by Hilton. Of the Scotch contingent who survive, Tait, who is said to be the steadlest and most consistent golfer in the world, won the title two years ago, as has been told, while Robs was the runner-up last year to A. J. T. Alian. He is barely 20, and was raised at St. Andrew's, where he is called the "golfing phenomenon. He has won nearly every scratch medal offered at the famous links, and in the open championship of 1895, played on his home course, he tied with Lawrence Auchterloule, at 340, for the best amateur score, and his second day's card, 163, was next to that of J. H. Taylor, who won. Otto Hockmeyer, the American beaten by Glover, is a member of the three Staten Island golfing clubs. He is not a scratch man at either club, however, and he had no hopes of getting a place. Before sailing on April 23 Hockmeyer said in an interview:

"I know I have no chance at Hoylake. However, if I am there for the championship it will be my duty to play, for it will give experience to me that will be of value to my clubmates should we ever have a U. S. G. A. championship on States Island." Five of these are Scotchmen.

The first open tournament of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club will begin at 10 o'clock this morning with the qualifying round, at eighteen holes, medal play. In the afternoon the first sixteen will meet at match play for the Dyker Meadow Cup and the second sixteen for a conso-lation cup presented by W. A. Taylor. The match play will be continued to-morrow, and on Satur-day the tournament will close with a medal-play team match for teams of five, for which the pres ant entries are the Country Club of Westchester. Westchester Gelf, Queens County Golf, Morris County Golf, St. Andrew's Golf, Fairfield County Gelf and the Dyker Meadow Club team. Each member of the winning team will receive a solid gold pair of cuff buttons of apprepriate golfing design. There will be a prize for the best score in this morning's round. There are over eighty entries, including about twenty from the home club. W. J. Travis, Oakland, will start, and W. H. Sands, St. Andrew's; Devereaux Emmet, Westbroek, and G. E. Armstrong, Staten Island Cricket, will make their first appearance in an open event this season. Two contestants from a distance will be W. C. Carnegie, Allegheny County Club, and H. M. Forrest, Philadelphia Cricket Club. The Crescent A. C. will be represented by W. M. Campbell, C. B. Van Brunt, J. L. Taylor and others, and the Marine and Field Club by M. V. Garland. Prominent among the other entries are L. P. Bayard, Jr., Baltusrol; Patrick Grant, Palinetto; E. Leavitt, Fairneld; H. G. Leavitt, Baltusrol; W. R. Thurston, Morris County; C. H. Seeley, Wee Burn; C. L. Tappin and Spencer A. Jennings, Westbrook; W. T. Grey and J. B. Baker, St. Andrew's, and Harvey Murdoch, J. B. C. Tappan, and W. L. Hicks, Queens County.

A unique competition for women was started at the Ardsley Club yesterday, for a cup presented by Mrs. R. M. Thompson to the player having the best score under the following conditions: County Club, and H. M. Forrest, Philadelphia

McCord, F. M. Freeman and E. B. Curtis. The second annual competition for the Queen's Jubilee cup, presented by F. E. Vivian Bond, will occur on June 18.

August Shiltz, one of the few professional golfers who have learned the game in this country, left yesterday for the South Country Club, at Narraganseit Pier, where he will be in charge during the season.

As the amateur championship is to be played at the Morris county links this year, all golfers are interested in the doings of the club. W. Allston Flagg, captain of the Morris County Golf Club, announced yesterday an important list of engagements for the players of his club, and introduced a new departure in the way of team matches, a matter in which the Morris County Club has hitherto not been urgent. On Saturday the men will play for the semi-annual championship of the club, at thirty-six holes, medal play, and on Decoration Day there will be a mixed foursome handicap. On June 4 the Morris County Golf Club has arranged to play the Dyker Meadow Golf Club, at Dyker Meadow, a team match of thirty men on a side, and, if it is successfully pulled off, it will be the most important match in point of numbers ever played in this country. To complete the spring contests, the Morris County Club will play on the Morristown links the Philadelphia Country Club on June 25. Capt. The fact that it was the second last day of racing at the Westchester Association's inclosure for some time to cominduced owners to enter freely and there were few withdrawals from the overnight events. The two stake features were placed in the middle of the card and they made enjoyable centre-pieces. The Galety Stakes for two-year-old fillies brought out a smart bunch of ten, but the talent showed little hesitation in selecting Ornamental, with Sloan up, to win out, Lady Onward was installed second choice, with Bettie Gray and Saccharine next in demand. A heavy, gray mist hung over the upper stretches as the youngsters cantered to the post for their halfmile dash down the Eclipse course. The start was scarcely visible through the stronges glasses, but when the lot raced into closer range Saccharine showed in front, with Lepida and Ornamental next in order. Sloan took the favorite into second position a furione from home and came away when he was ready, winning easily by half a length from Saccharine in fast

Four good performers went for the Harlem Four good performers went for the Harlem Selling Stakes over the Withers mile, the only withdrawal being the Fleischmanns' Mr. Baiter, who was scratched in favor of Lehman. The latter, ridden by Sloan, ruled favorite at 6 to 5, and after rating along behind his field to the stretch he won very easily by three lengths from Damien, the second choice. A post plunge on the light-weighted Bableca cut her price from 8 to 1 down to 3 to 1. Bromley & Co.'s Kenmore Queen, ridden by Sloan, was plunged on to win in the fifth event, but this time Tod's followers burned their fingers, as Maher, on Nearest, ranged alongside in the last sixteenth and beat the favorite by a head in a het drive. Marsian made a runaway race of the sixth, and sent the talent home in good humor with four wins to their credit.

The meeting winds up today and a big gathering of horsemen and racegoers is anticipated. Hamburg is slated to make his three-year-old début in the historic Belmont Stakes. Howling Brook and Previous are entered against him, and the noted trio should put up a grand struggle over the mile and three furlongs course. The other stake feature is the Van Cortlandt Heavy-weight Handicap, and it brings together such clever weight carriers as Cleophus, Octagon, Hen Ronald, Thomas Cat, Merry Prince, George Keene, Sly Fox, and Warrenton. The Derby has become universally recognized as the "blue ribben of the turt," and to win it is the greatest honor supired to by horsemen. It was first run for in 1780, when Diomed won. The Prince of Wales, afterward George IV., won with Sir Thomas in 1788. Since then the classic event has been associated with the names of distinguished men and Jamous thoroughbreds. It brought out the Flying Dutchman in 1849, and the race of 1852 was signatured by the triumph of Daniel O'Rourse, a rank outsider. The French had their innings in 1865, when the noted Gladlateur captured the ribbon as well as the Two Thousanu and Si, Leger. Austria scored in 1876 with Kisber, and America's turn came in 1881 when Mr. Lorillard's Iroquois won in the masterly hands of Fred Archer.

Iroquois won in the masterly hands of Fred Archer.

The present Lord Rosebery created a two-year sensation by winning in 1894 with Ladas and in 1895 with Sir Visto. Then came the popular win of the Prince of Wales's Persimmon, in 1890, and the hollow victory of the Irish coit Gaitee More last year. With the latter out of the way Lord Rosebery would have beaten all records, as his coit Velanquez ran second to Kendal's invincible son. There was a dead heat in 1828 and again in 1884, but the most sensational feature of the historic series developed in 1844, when a coit entered as Running Rein won. Investigation showed that he was a four-year-old, and the race was awarded to Col. Peel's Orlando.

ROWING.

Mariard Will Agree on a Date.

CAMBRIDGE Mass. May 25.—Capt. J. H. Per kins of the Harvard 'varsity crew came to Cambridge for a short time to-day, but returned to Milton early in the afternoon. In regard to the present muddle the Harvard captain said that he had requested a conference with Yale and Cornell for to-morrow, but that neither Colson nor Whitney could be present. Capt. Perkins said that there was no squabble. Capt. Colson of Cornell, in reply to Harvard's proposal for June 25 as race day, stated that Cornell's arrangements didn't permit of her rowing on that date. Faculty regulations prevent Harvard's rowing until after the examinations, which end on June 23. Harvard, also, does not wish to row on class day, as none of the seniors could see the race, Harvard, according to the captain, would agree

Harvard, according to the captain, would agree to any fair proposition.

As the Cornell and Yale captains cannot well leave their crows on any week day. Perkins nas proposed a conference for next Sunday at a place to be later agreed upon. Perkins said that the whole sentument of the graduates and students was for a race with Cornell. He anticipated no trouble in coming to an agreement, and said that he should be very much surprised if the Ithacans did not row at New London.

NEW HAVEN, May 25.—Yale has agreed to leave the disposition of the date for the Yale-Harvard-Cornell boat race to Harvard. The Yale and Harvard crew managers held a long conference this evening by telephone. A number of plans fer settling the date question were discussed. The most feasible plan secmed to be to hold the 'varsity race on Thursday, June 23, and the freshman contest the next day. This reverces the usual programme. The Harvard management was unable to give a definite answer to this proposal of Yale A, as it involves a change in the plans for the Yale-Harvard baseball game at Cambridge, June 23. Yale proposes to change the date for this game to June 24, the Yale crew and baseball management and the faculty agreeing to the change.
